

HULFT for Manufacturing & Supply Chain Companies

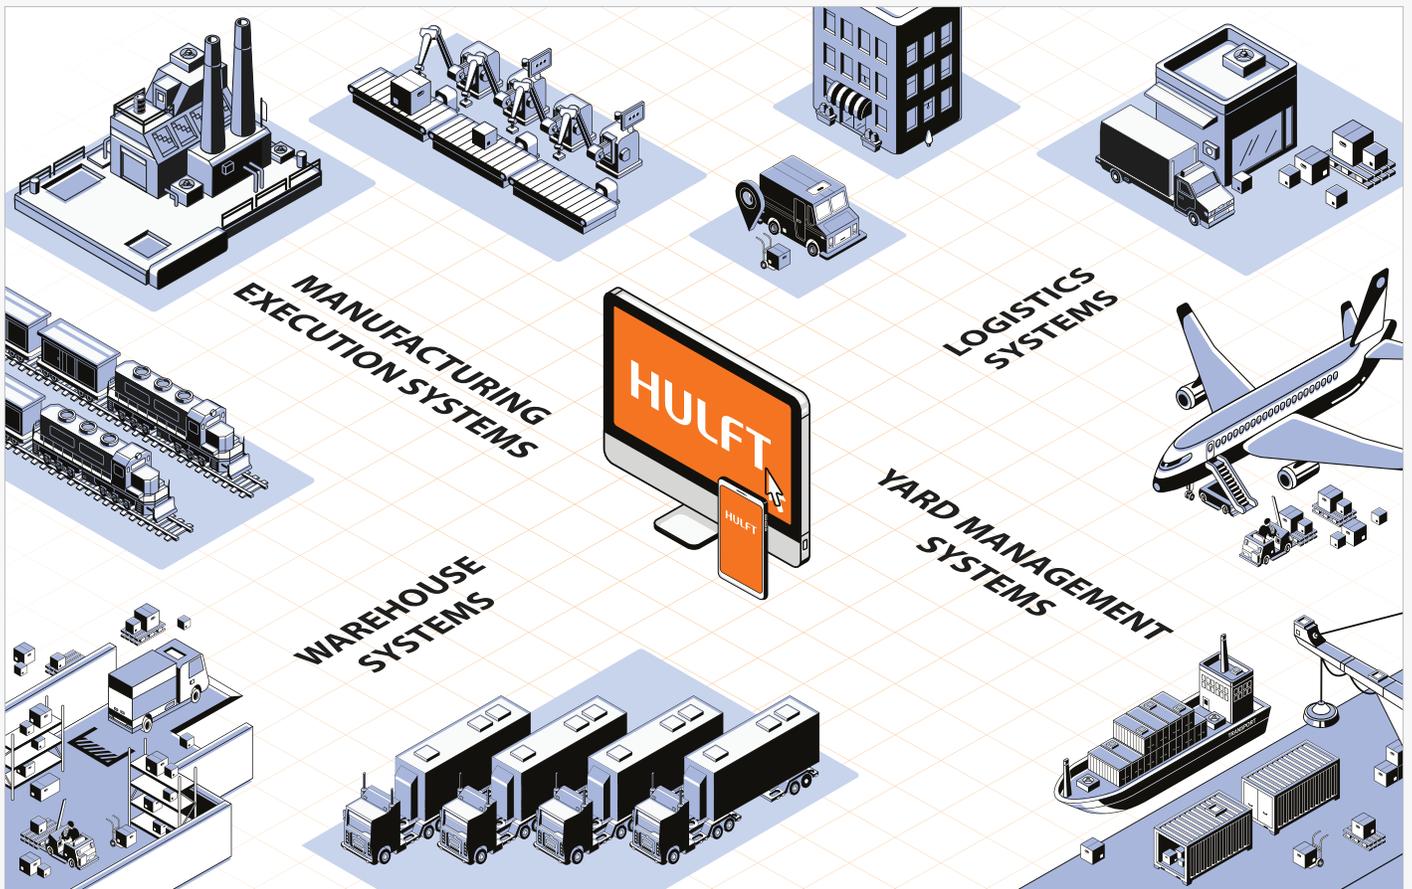

Custom integration solutions for disparate IT systems

When the software that manages your manufacturing execution, warehouses, yard, inventory planning and logistics were all created in different decades by different companies, there is no such thing as a standard integration.

You need specialized solutions to match your unique business processes.

HULFT is here to help.

As a 35-year-old integration software provider to the manufacturing and supply chain industries, HULFT has helped more than 10,000 companies navigate hundreds of critical supply and demand challenges around the globe.

HULFT connects your entire supply chain ecosystem with a flexible, no-code platform that extends the life of your core systems and helps you deliver data and insights faster than ever before.

Manufacturing supply chains trust HULFT

A global leader in material handling can now integrate data between their ERP and peripheral systems within minutes.

A 70-year-old machinery manufacturer overhauled its existing order processing for a modern automated system that was still compatible with its legacy investments.

A large semiconductor manufacturer has reduced data transmission time from 30 minutes to three.

A nutritional supplement manufacturer consolidated data sharing between 30 different systems and applications, reducing operational hours by 50 percent.
